

Changing Coastlines

As sea levels rise, the protective effect of our reefs and islands will decrease, leading to increased wave energy arriving along our beaches.

For example, a 1m wave today may be a 2m wave under the same conditions in 2110

Due to the low lying, sandy nature of many parts of our coast, these changing conditions will lead to the inland recession of the shoreline in many areas

