

Additional Information

I'm a local dad with a simple goal: to help build a safer, stronger, and more connected community for our children and future generations. This passion drives my work at Perth Children's Hospital, where I lead projects that make healthcare safer and more accessible for families. It's also why I'm running for Council.

My family and I have deep roots here. We bought our home locally, welcomed our first child, and are now raising our young family. Living here has given me a real appreciation for the people, places, and potential that make our suburbs so special.

When I'm not at the hospital, I volunteer with the City's Community Safety, RoadWise, and Multicultural Advisory Groups. These roles have given me the experience to listen, learn, and work closely with residents, councillors, staff, and community leaders to address youth crime, improve road safety, and foster an inclusive environment. As part of the Multicultural Advisory Group, I've been proud to help bring people from diverse cultures and religions together, supporting their integration into our broader community.

I love our native bushland and wildlife. As our city grows, we must protect these natural spaces for future generations.

My priorities in Council will be to:

Support families by keeping our parks, footpaths, and community facilities well-maintained and safe.

Tackle youth crime with practical solutions like mobile CCTV in hotspots and preventative measures like support services and after-school activities.

Manage rates responsibly to reduce pressure during this cost-of-living crisis.

Back local businesses and community groups to drive growth, innovation, and job opportunities.

Protect our natural spaces and bushland while encouraging sustainable, balanced development.

Ensure residents' voices are heard in every decision.

I'm not a member of any political party, just a local resident who cares deeply about this community and is committed to listening, working hard, and delivering results.
